Miranda - Teenage Years

Hey guys, I am going to finish writing the dinner party fanfiction at some point but I have writers block. This fanfic is set in Miranda's teenage years. She did not meet Gary at University but at Stevie's uni party. This fic is rated M if I dare put some Miranda/Gary smut in.

Miranda - Teenage Years

>Miranda slammed the front door as hard as she could and stormed into the kitchen. Ever since she had come back from boarding school her parents had been in an even more annoying mood and had already started buying her utensils for secretarial college. Even worse she had fallen out with Gary, her crush since they had met at a university party Stevie dragged her along to. But the thing was he already had a girlfriend, Rose, and Miranda hated everything about her. Her perfect body, her hair just right and most of all, having Gary wrapped around her little finger. Miranda had never been one for jealousy but that girl had gone far enough and taken everything Miranda wanted.
-Flashback-

>As Miranda entered Stevie and Gary's dorm room she saw Gary's passed out figure slumped over piles of workbooks. She tiptoed over to his side and brushed the stray hair off of his face. My god he was handsome and she lost herself then and there. She leaned down and kissed him, forgetting all about Rose and the consequences. She heard Gary gasp and pulled back, worry taking over all of her emotions. The look on Gary's face showed disgust as he pushed himself off of his chair and walked over to her. He grabbed her face in his hands and kissed her forcefully startling her for a split second. She pushed him off of her and shook her head, tears now spilling down her cheeks.

"Gary! Gary we can't. Rose, will kill you. I'm sorry." She whispered, trying hard not to see the heartbreak in his eyes. She grabbed her bag and ran out of the door, bumping into her mother and father.
